

Dr. Pippa Meriwether is the owner of Quality Sue Leadership Solutions which specializes in leadership and educational consulting, professional mentoring, and customized personal and professional development.

As an experienced and innovative leader with over 25 years of successful teaching, learning, and leadership experience at the post-secondary and Pre-K through high school levels, Dr. Meriwether has demonstrated the proven ability to: communicate a vision of high expectations and establish a culture of collaboration and buy-in throughout an organization; design systems, structures, and processes to ensure fidelity to organizational priorities; identify high yield change drivers and design data driven action plans; create tools to minimize implementation gaps; coach for improved professional performance and increased capacity; and lead continuous improvement initiatives rooted in improvement and implementation sciences that have led to a plethora of increased professional practice and student learning outcomes.

Dr. Meriwether's professional experience in the education field spans across several roles as she has served as a college instructor, a classroom teacher, a behavior specialist, an executive principal, and in central office roles as an executive director, a community superintendent, and as an associate superintendent. Prior to becoming an educator, she spent several years in the corporate sector with an emphasis in advertising and writing product descriptions. Dr. Meriwether holds a Bachelor's degree in English, a Master's degree in Curriculum and Instruction, and Education Specialist and Doctoral degrees in Administration and Supervision. Additionally, she has conducted extensive educational research and presented at the local, national, and international levels. In her spare time, she likes to upholster furniture and meet new people.
