

Amy Henderson is the VP of Organizational Development at LeanKit, the industry-leading enterprise Kanban and Lean work management software provider. Prior to LeanKit, Amy was the CEO of Firefly Logic, a Nashville-based boutique custom software development firm.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Amy champions technology as a career choice for students and adults, and works with students of all ages in the Middle Tennessee area to explore the wide range of STEM roles available. She currently serves on the Board of Directors for the Nashville Technology Council, the IT Career Cluster Industry Advisory Council for the Tennessee Department of Education, and the External Advisory Board for the Computer Science Department at Middle Tennessee State University. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Computer Science from MTSU, and her career includes 18 years of software development and project management consulting.